

Each of the regional networks that make up Regional Voices, including One East Midlands, has produced a “Who’s Who” guide to key people working in health, wellbeing and care in each region. The guides include relevant people from NHS England area teams, clinical commissioning groups, health and wellbeing boards, CQC, commissioning support units and local Healthwatch.

You can access the Who’s Who guides for the other regions at www.regionalvoices.org/whoswho

!!! Acronym warning !!! The Who's Who Guides may contain acronyms that are unfamiliar to some. All relevant new structures and names are explained in our Regional Voices briefings. So if you'd like to know your CCGs from your CQC- please read the Regional Voices briefings which explain all

Please help us keep this guide up to date by notifying us of any changes, corrections or information to help us fill any gaps by emailing wellbeing@selfhelp.org.uk

NHS England Regional Teams

NHS England Midlands and East is one of four regional teams that support the commissioning services and directly commission primary care and specialised services at a local level across England. Geographically, the Midlands and East regional team covers the West Midlands, North Midlands, Central Midlands and East. <https://www.england.nhs.uk/mids-east/contact-us/>

NHS England Equalities and Health Inequalities

NHS England has legal and ethical obligations to reduce health inequalities and advance equality, in accordance with the public sector Equality Duty of the Equality Act 2010. Public bodies were required to prepare and publish objectives by 6 April 2012 to meet the general equality duty as outlined in the Equality Act 2010. The Equality and Health Inequalities team of NHS England will drive forward the strategic priorities and deliverables set out in the Equality and Health Inequalities Strategy

Commissioning Support Units [CSUs]

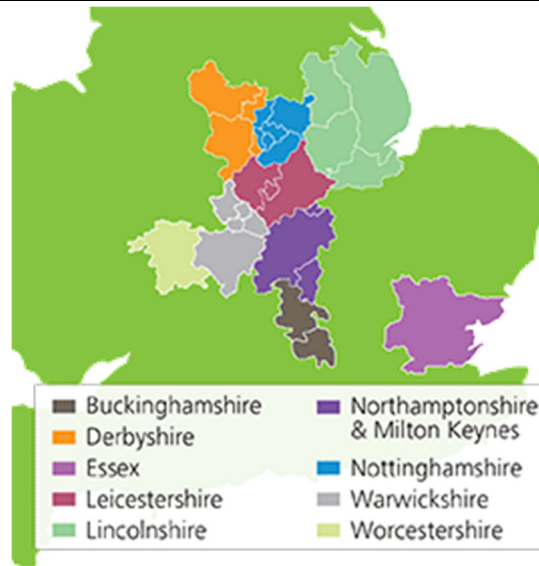

Commissioning Support Units are not geographically defined, this means that in some cases customers are local or regional clinical commissioners, and in others they include clinical commissioning groups in other parts of England.

Arden GEM Partnership

The partnership brings together the commissioning services of NHS Arden CSU and NHS Greater Midlands CSU

Arden and Gem CSU have several offices – information is available on their website

Clinical Commissioning Groups [CCGs]

CCGs are clinically led groups that include all of the GP groups in their geographical area.. They are responsible for designing and commissioning local health services and have to use the Joint Strategic Needs Assessment (JSNA) and Joint Health and Wellbeing strategy when drawing up their commissioning plans. CCGs are overseen by NHS England (including its Regional Offices and Area Teams). These structures manage primary care commissioning, including holding the NHS Contracts for GP practices NHS

Health and Wellbeing Boards

Hosted by local authorities, each top tier and unitary authority has its own health and wellbeing board. Health and wellbeing boards bring together the NHS, public health, adult social care and children's services, including elected representatives and Local Healthwatch, to plan how best to meet the needs of their local population and tackle local inequalities in health. In some areas there is also a voluntary and community sector (VCS) representative on the Board.  NB: In this context the VCS representative is generally understood to be independent of Healthwatch; often representing or providing the unique perspective of voluntary and community sector organisations who work with the communities served by the H&WB boards rather than individuals within those communities.

Joint Strategic Needs Assessment (JSNA)

Joint Strategic Needs Assessment (JSNA) is a collection of information that aims to identify the health and wellbeing needs of the local population on each local authority area. Health & Wellbeing Boards use the JSNA to develop the Health and Wellbeing Strategy and set commissioning priorities

The JSNA is expected to:

- Describe the future health and wellbeing of its population.
- Better support the needs of local communities by identifying and encouraging interventions at earlier stages to more effectively target the causes of health problems.
- Help understand the needs of the whole population.
- Consider and understand the wider determinants of health.

Joint Health and Wellbeing Strategy

Each Health and Wellbeing Board will be required to draw up a joint and high level Health and Wellbeing Strategy, informed by the Joint Strategic Needs Assessment. It will set the overall strategic direction for Health and Wellbeing.

Health and Social Care Overview and Scrutiny Committees

Each relevant council has a health overview and scrutiny committee dedicated to scrutinising local NHS policy, planning, and impact against local needs and inequalities. This committee is made up of councillors (and in two-tier areas often includes district/borough members as well as county councillors) and thereby has democratic legitimacy. It may also include co-opted members. Cabinet members are not eligible to sit on the health overview and scrutiny committee or any other scrutiny committee. The meetings are open to the press and public in the same way as any council meeting.

The primary aim of health scrutiny is to act as a lever to improve the health of local people, ensuring their needs are considered as an integral part of the commissioning, delivery and development of health services.

Healthwatch England

Healthwatch England is the independent consumer champion for health and social care in England. It provides a national voice on the key issue that matter to people using health & social care services. It advises the NHS Commissioning Board, English local authorities, Monitor and the Secretary of State and has the power to recommend action be taken on behalf of people using health & social care services. Healthwatch England provides leadership, support and advice to local healthwatch organisations.

Healthwatch in the East Midlands

There are 9 local Healthwatch in the East Midlands; one for each local authority area. Local Healthwatch organisations will involve people from all parts of the community, giving everyone a voice in local health and care services. They will collect evidence from the community and bring this to the attention of local health commissioners and will be a representative on health and wellbeing boards. They will also use this evidence to inform Healthwatch England.
